Soul Track Mind teams up with San Antonio Food Bank

Central Texas soul titans urge fans to bring nonperishable donations to pre-Thanksgiving show at Sam's Burger Joint to restock SAFB coffers

WHAT: Long a staple of the Texas music scene, Soul Track Mind recently cemented its popularity in the home of the blues, by winning the 2014 Louisiana Music Prize. To celebrate that victory, and the continuing success of their latest album Unbreakable, the band is getting in the Thanksgiving Spirit by urging its fans to bring nonperishable donations to its Nov. 26, show at San Antonio's seminal music venue – Sam's Burger Joint.

The band has partnered with the San Antonio Food Bank to receive the goods, in an effort both groups hope will replenish the stores of SAFB for the holiday season. The food bank will have distributed most of its food for Thanksgiving by the show and officials for the organization said ramped-up donations are crucial to restock the cupboards during the holiday season.

WHO: Featured on the summer 2013 cover of Texas Music magazine, Soul Track Mind infuses soul and R&B with flares of funk, rock, and dance rhythms in a modern sound deeply rooted in retro convictions. Since the band's inception in 2008, whirlwind frontman Donovan Keith and the dapper disciples of Soul Track Mind have become synonymous with wildly entertaining shows that have made them a force to reckon with in the modern soul genre.
